Do you want to transfer ZAR to family with a Standard Bank South Africa account? Or perhaps you are transferring money to make property payments? Whatever your reasons, considering the transfer methods available is wise as this will help you find the most suitable and cost effective option.

Transfer ZAR with a bank or a money sending bureau

An obvious choice when you need to transfer ZAR to Standard Bank South Africa is a bank or a money sending bureau as these services are convenient and easy to use. Although these services are accessible and convenient there downfall is that they are costly as they give customers uncompetitive exchange rates and apply considerable transfer fees.

Is there another way to transfer money?

Xendpay is a great way to transfer ZAR to Standard Bank South Africa as we make money transfers easier while reducing the costs involved. Our international transfer service is more economical than transferring money with a bank or money sending bureau as we offer a competitive Rand exchange rate and will not charge you a large fee to transfer your money.

Whatever your reasons for transferring ZAR and whatever the balance, Xendpay which is our online payments service lets you transfer money conveniently online 24/7 from any location.

To transfer South African Rand to Standard Bank South Africa just tell us the recipient's bank account details, their IBAN number and the SWIFT code of their bank then credit our client account with the funds you wish to transfer.

When you transfer money with Xendpay you will gain peace of mind as we are a trusted company who have safely transferred around £2 Billion in currency.

Standard Bank South Africa, like all banks, may sometimes refuse to accept payments from some or all third parties. Under these circumstances we will return the money to the client once it has been returned to RationalFX, less any SWIFT and third-party transfer costs and foreign exchange losses incurred.
